

THE DEATHLY HALLOWS

"What do you know about the Deathly Hallows?"

"It is rumored there are three: the Elder Wand, the Cloak of Invisibility that hides you from your enemies, and the Resurrection Stone to bring back loved ones from the dead. Together they make one the Master of Death. But few truly believe that such objects exist..."

—Harry Potter and Garrick Ollivander, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows – Part 2

In addition to the Horcruxes, Harry Potter is made aware of three more artifacts that need to be accounted for: the Deathly Hallows, which will make Lord Voldemort invincible. The discovery of what these are and who possesses them is stunning, as they have been visibly part of the story all along and are associated with Harry, Dumbledore, and the young Voldemort. Harry first learns of the Deathly Hallows when he sees a curious necklace worn by Xenophilius Lovegood at Bill Weasley's wedding in Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows – Part 1. The three artifacts the stylized necklace represents are believed by some to hold the key to becoming the Master of Death. Harry's suspicion is that Lord Voldemort has assumed the legend is true and is making efforts to acquire them. The Dark Lord steals the first—the Elder Wand—from Dumbledore's crypt in the epilogue of Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows – Part 1. Harry unknowingly already possesses one—the Cloak of Invisibility—and inherits the third—the Resurrection Stone—from Dumbledore.

INSET: Development artwork by Miraphora Mina of the necklace Xenophilius Lovegood wears in Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows – Part 1; BELOW: Hermione Granger, Ron Weasley and Harry Potter watch as Lovegood sketches out the symbol for the Deathly Hallows in a scene from the film; OPPOSITE: Storyboard art of the same scene.

A

Wider as the group try to follow what Lovegood is saying.

Page

CUT TO

B

Angle on Lovegood.

Lovegood: The Resurrection Stone

Lovegood draws something on paper o/s

CUT TO

C

Closer on the Three as they listen intently.

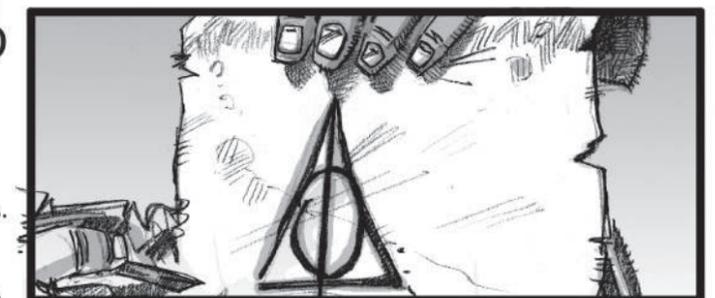

CUT TO

D

... then he encloses both in a TRIANGLE.

Lovegood: The Cloak Of Invisibility. Together.... they make the Deathly Hallows. Together ...they make one master of Death.

CUT TO